INTRODUCTION

For the Reader:

When you begin your journey in recovery, it is easy to focus on life's major issues and skip the basic, practical aspects of daily living. We in recovery can underestimate the level of stress and pressure that basic life maintenance such as, errands, budgeting, and time management present. As a result of this underestimating, the newly recovering person is blindsided by unexpected feelings and triggers. Ironically, a small amount of preparation will result in a chance to effectively manage the stress from previously unexpected sources.

This workbook is designed for people dealing with any form of addictive behavior. This includes but is not limited to the following:

Drugs & Alcohol

Gambling

Eating Disorders

Problem Spending

Sexual Addiction

Behavioral Addictions including:

Rage

Impulsivity

This workbook will help you create a system for organizing your new life responsibilities and recovery program.

HUMILITY WORKSHEET

Often times needing help is a reality that threatens our ego. It is tempting to down play the need to acknowledge our limitations, to ask for help, and to ignore the specific type of help that is needed and available.

We do this by down playing our awareness of the accessibility and effectiveness of available help. In the realm of psychotherapy, recovery and medication management, we exhibit behaviors of non-compliance and non-attendance. We say to ourselves:

"Meetings don't do any good"
"Therapy is just talk"
"The meds are just a different kind of drug"
"I can never find a meeting"
"I can fit this into my schedule"

Saying these things results in the following consequences:

Recovery -Not attending meetings, fellowship, stepwork

Medication -Treatment- missing appointments, lack of medication compliance

Psychotherapy - Missing appointments, lack of compliance - denial of need altogether.

Family support - Not asking for help when needed, for example, identifying the need to clarify and establish boundaries. Not saying "no" to unhealthy environments and invitations that jeopardize recovery.

Work - Not attending functions that are triggers. "I have to stay late to complete this deadline", even though it means missing my therapy appointment.

We take the stance that not getting help and toughing it out means that we don't need help. Sometimes the desire isn't to fake ourselves out, however, we are embarrassed to inconvenience our families. We do this in a variety of areas for example, not wanting to ask for a ride to a meeting when our license is suspended.

"I know you worked all day, but I still need you to take care of the kids while I take the bus to the meeting since my license is suspended"

It is hard to recognize our own needs for help and support.

CONSEQUENCES FOLDER

This is a folder that you will create as a concrete, tangible reminder of the consequences you have endured as a direct result of using, substance abuse and/or other addictions.

Your Consequences Folder can include the following:

Hospital Records - Go in person and fill out all required release forms to obtain your records. You may choose to share your reasons for doing this. You may want to coordinate reading the records with your home group, therapist, or sponsor.

Legal Records - All court date, traffic violations, domestic, finance related, bankruptcy, etc.

Intervention Letters - Family, friends. Family and friends can also write one now describing how things were back then, if need be.

Treatment Center Records - Discharge Summary, and any notes, etc.

Pictures - Any photos that provide memories of using, as long as they did not glorify the situation.

Negative Notes - Termination notices, eviction notices

Debt - Bills, threats for garnishing wages.

All Related Receipts

HOUSING WORKSHEET

While time in sobriety is being established and maintained, it is important to examine your choice of housing and select housing that will best suite your recovery goals.

Options for supportive housing environments include:

1. Halfway House - This is a residential facility, which can sometimes be a supplemental part of your residential treatment. A completed stay at a Halfway House can range from an average of two to six months. The average cost usually starts from $250.00 per week. Meals are generally provided and employment is a requirement. This facility accommodates all ages above adult. Adolescents are in a separate residential home. Drug testing is done at random. There are mandatory house meetings routinely scheduled where chores are assigned and compliance is maintained. Restrictions can be reinforced and privileges are lost and gained accordingly. The benefits of the Halfway House are that it is structured and it is a guaranteed sober environment.
2. Sober House - This is an informal, agreed upon, long-term roommate living situation. It can range from two people who meet at a recovery meeting and decide to live together and maintain sobriety to an advertised, commercial sober home. Sober homes typically have a definite set of rules and regulations including the agreement to stay sober in order to remain a resident. If you break the rules, you are required to leave and forfeit your deposit.
3. Return to Previous Living Situation - There can be a fine line between wanting to make amends with family members by returning home versus staying true to recovery needs by postponing your return "home". Family and other members of your previous household may not grasp an understanding of the requirements and the legitimate physical and emotional limitations you are facing. Family and other members of your previous household may not grasp your need to utilize other housing for a time prior your return.

HOUSING WORKSHEET

2. How do I determine and identify what key factors will make an ideal housing and living environment for my recovery program?

Consider how the following criteria will impact your decision:

Financial situation
Emotional well being
Situational (people, places, things) HALT (Hungry, Angry, Lonely, Tired)

All environments will produce some trigger -nothing is 100% ideal.

3. Identify the key influencers and how they will effect your decision.

Family of Origin
Spouse, Partner, Children -fear of losing a relationship
Other Family Members
Friends and Peer Pressure
Employer and work relationships
Acquaintances
Image -ego related and ego driven issues

4. Ideal Sober Environment -Short Term, Intermediate Term, Long Term

Explore the following:

Concept of Long Term vs. Short Term gains as applied to housing.
Short Term sacrifice in exchange for long term gains.
Graduated plan to identify when to move to next level of housing.

5. Possible Challenges to staying on course:

Staff
Roommate
Amenities
Pressure from outside world.

THE CHART BELOW LOOKS AT DIFFERENT ASPECTS OF HOUSING

| Type of Housing              | Cost | Average Length of Stay | Staff on Premise | Monitoring* | Meetings on Premise/Meeting Availability |
|------------------------------|------|------------------------|------------------|-------------|--|
| Halfway House                |      |                        |                  |             |  |
| Sober house                  |      |                        |                  |             |  |
| Independent Living           |      |                        |                  |             |  |
| Return to Original Situation |      |                        |                  |             |  |

List other issues specific to you.

- * Random drug testing
- Dietary evaluation
- Money management
- Overall supervision

EMPLOYMENT WORKSHEET

It is crucial to identify and target employment that will support your recovery. The wrong job at the wrong time will compete with your focus, putting your sobriety into jeopardy, in exchange for what may seem to be an easy situation.

There are three main ways in which people sabotage their recovery by choosing the wrong employment.

Discussion - Which category do you most relate to?

1. Image -

Selecting a position with the goal of preserving image and/or prestige. "I've worked in this field for ten years, I can still do it"? "I certainly can't work for low hourly wages, my salary was close to figures. These are two examples regarding the money and title aspect of career image.

2. Associations -

Jobs obtained through family and friends. A family member might say "I don't know why you won't just come and work for me." "I can use your help around here, and I will pay you." Or criticism from family and friends for the position you selected during your recovery.

3. Fear - (Sometimes what appears as a Lack of Motivation is really Fear in disguise)

Please describe your thoughts and feelings

EMPLOYMENT QUESTIONS

The following are questions are to be read over and discussed during workshop.

1. If returning to a previous job, how is this in line with changing people, places, things? Is this a solid, recovery friendly return, or is this a risky situation? Why?

---

2. If this is a new job, is this a mirror image of an old atmosphere or is this new working environment a healthy improvement?

---

---

3. If you have an established career, have you decided to take a break from your career and to instead opt for a job that won't compete with your recovery focus? Why or why not?

---

---

4. Are you targeting jobs that are recovery friendly; not being so stressful or demanding too much at this time? If so, what types of jobs?

---

---

5. What makes a job recovery friendly?

---

---

6. How will you handle co-workers drinking at work related functions?

---

---

7. Will you share at work about being in the program? Why or why not?
